Darayya's Library

John Edwards, July 21 2016

In Darayya, a city in Syria, there's a library, and it has 15,000 books on almost every subject you can think of. However, it is different from any libraries you know: It is a secret underground library, and only people in Darayya know where it is.

Over the years, war (戰爭) has shaken Darayya badly. Every day, houses are bombed (轟炸) and people are killed. Stores are closed one after another, and so are schools. To help the kids in Darayya with their learning, Anas Ahmad, a 19-year-old student, and his friends decided to build a library. They built the library under the ground to keep it safe from bombing. But it is dangerous to collect books for the library. Often, Ahmad and his friends look for books in houses that were bombed. They need to be careful because they may be killed in another bombing.

You may ask, "In a place like Darayya, would people be interested in books?" "Just like the body needs food, the mind needs books," says one library user. In the library, people enjoy their time of reading and forget about the terrible world above, so their life doesn't seem (彷彿) so hard. Through reading, they are able to dream of a better life after war.

When we need some sweets, we often go to a convenience store and get a chocolate bar. But do you know where chocolate is from? You probably (有可能) know it is from cocoa beans (可可豆); then where are cocoa beans from? Cocoa beans are mainly planted in tropical (熱帶的) countries, and the cocoa bean farmers put much effort to grow, water and harvest (收成) the beans. However, once they sell the beans to chocolate manufacturers (製造商), they don't get enough money to raise their families. Luckily, an organization (機構), Fairtrade, noticed it and tried to improve the situation (情況). Fairtrade sets a buy-and-sell price system (系統), and cocoa bean farmers can get reasonable (合理的) money through the system.
