What will happen when an earthquake hits? An earthquake happens because the plates on the outside of the Earth rub against and push into each other. A serious earthquake may cause landslides, tsunamis, or volcanic eruptions. Here are some reminders for you.

- When a serious earthquake hits, you should keep the door open. By doing so, you'll have a better chance to run away.
- You should also hide under a table or stay near a wall, and make sure you are away from the windows. If you are under a table or a desk, hold onto it.
- Use soft things, like clothes, or arms to cover your head.
- After the shaking, it is better to go outside before next shaking happens. However, if you live on high floors, don't use elevators.

Remember these things, and they may keep you safe when an earthquake hits.

Dear Ms. Watson,

Thanks for reading my letter. I'm a new student in Class 802. I'm from Canada, and I moved to Hsinchu with my mother last month. We came here because of her work.

My school life here is fine. My favorite classes at school are math, PE, and English. I like your class a lot because you always encourage students to practice speaking. In your class, I can talk with my classmates in English instead of Chinese. Although I spend a lot of time practicing Chinese with my friends, I just don't understand the meaning of many words. So, I need some help from you. If you have free time, could you give me some useful tips for learning Chinese?

Sorry for bothering you. Please reply if it's convenient for you.

Sincerely,

Ryan
